

PARTICIPATION & WELLBEING LEAD

Growing New Zealanders' love of basketball

Basketball in Aotearoa has experienced strong growth during the last decade with more people playing, watching, and becoming fans. Through our Strengthen and Adapt Plan we are transforming basketball across the country. Key focus areas include growing the game for girls and women, participation and player wellbeing, developing community clubs, spaces to play and quality development for coaches and officials.

Do you have what it takes to lead transformation?

We are willing to consider candidates who prefer to work from other locations. We are looking for people who are:

- Passionate about people, communities, and sport
- Capable of leading projects from start to finish
- Able to think strategically, plan and deliver on the desired outcomes
- Resilient and flexible with a positive attitude
- Keen to build strong relationships with diverse groups
- Committed to outstanding customer focus

The wellbeing of our participants, with emphasis on tamariki and rangatahi (children and young people), must be at the heart of our decision-making and programme development. This role will embed a player centered approach to all programmes and services, including Kiwi Hoops and Girls Got Game, and will take full accountability for the development and implementation of the Participation Strategy and Wellbeing Policy. This will include identifying and developing good practice, and sharing this with associations and partners, while also keeping them fully informed of BBNZ programmes, resources, support, and services.

You will need: A relevant qualification, or equivalent significant experience in community sport development and delivery; experience developing and delivering community participation programmes; high levels of energy and the ability to influence and lead change; excellent written and oral communication skills.

What we offer:

- An exciting, dynamic, and challenging work environment
- Professional development and exposure to the sport and recreation sector
- Flexible working arrangements
- The opportunity to make an impact with the fastest growing major sport in NZ

This is a full-time, permanent, employment opportunity that requires flexibility and a willingness to travel. An understanding of basketball as a sport would be advantageous. To apply, go to the Seek:
